PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

The house at 220 West Street Road is a four-bay, two-story, hipped-roofed, painted brick bank-house with one interior chimney in the middle of the roof. Its roof is clad in asphalt shingles. The fenestration is asymmetrical. There is a flat-roofed, wood portico on the north (front) elevation, a wood and screen porch on the west elevation, and a wood, two-story porch on the south (back) elevation of the house.

There is a two-bay garage to the east of the house. This garage probably dates to the same time period as the house.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

This house and garage was constructed for the current owner on land that had once been part of the Joseph Brinton Farm.
